

This problem of access is something people run into all the time without realizing it.

A lot of people just sort of move on and think, "Well, this is the way it is."

They don't realize there's a whole system behind it.

But their education depends on access to the journal literature.

Professors can only teach what they have access to.

Oh well!
ACCESS DENIED

Students and researchers in low and middle income countries really struggle.

It prevents them from contributing fully to world class research.
